SUMNER

How in heck do the old folks know when it ain't goin' to rain no more? We have had only five or six days here out of six weeks that it did not rain from at least one-half hour to a full day pouring rain, with no signs of anything different in sight.

The hay crop looks good here. Apples also look well, and plenty of feed in pastures and nearly every one is raising from one to a half dozen calves.

Joseph Bosse took one of his horses from his back pasture last Thursday and his teamster drove it home in a light carriage, this being the only horse driven over the green road in a buggy so far this summer.

Thursday morning at ten o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Maycomber of Newton, Mass., drove in at her sister's place, Mrs. Emerson Bartlett's to stop over the Fourth, Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Maycomber, Mrs. Bartlett, Lionel, Grace and Gertrude Bartlett went to South Paris to look at the much talked of fire works, all went in the Maycomber car. It is said there were about a dozen other cars went the same route from Sumner.

A part of Donald Varney's trucks were hauling pulp from the green woods lot to East Sumner last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Russell, Mrs. York and Emerson, Robert and George Russell called on Mrs. Russell's mother, Mrs. Emerson Bartlett, July 4th.

Saturday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Maycomber and Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Bartlett went for a ride in the big Daniels car, going through East Sumner, Hartford, Peru to Dixfield, where we called on Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stanley and Wilder Chase, and then drove to Joseph Edmonds' place, where his daughter told them that her father had gone fishing.

Mr. Edmonds is eighty-six and the holder of the towns gold headed cane. He had gone fishing, what do you know about that? We also saw Wild Ricker, all of old times. Mrs. Stanley sent her copy to Claude Griffith in Pasadena, Cal. They drove out of that handsome and prosperous little village and up river to Rumford, where we enjoyed looking at the new Memorial bridge, which is nearly finished, though it is dedicated July 4, 1930. Arrived home by way Green woods road at five p. m.

Sunday morning at ten o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Maycomber left for home taking Grace and Gertrude Bartlett, whom they carried to South Eddington, Mass., that night, a distance of two hundred and thirty-five miles. ## WHITEWASHING

Cow stables are usually whitewashed once or twice a year. Although many whitewash formulas call for the addition to the lime and water of other substances such as salt or skim milk, good whitewash can be made with only lime and water. Ordinary hydrated lime mixed with water makes satisfactory whitewash; or quicklime (ordinarily called lump lime) may be slaked with a small amount of water. Only freshly burned lump lime should be used. Do not use air-slaked lime, as whitewash made from such lime will not stick.

Mrs. C. W. Bell spent the week end in Auburn and South Paris with friends.

Norman and Malcolm Loring of Philadelphia, Pa., spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hall.

At West Bethel union church, H. P. McGlasson, minister, "Junk the church! Why Not Do So?" will be the question for consideration Sunday morning, July 13th at 10:30. CHAPTER VIII

Tom Gets a Situation

Tom and Charley were warmly greeted by the ladies when they made their appearance in the dining room for breakfast. Mrs. Benton put her arms around them saying: "I am proud of both of you. I was anxious last night that you should get out of it unhurt and but you have come out of it credit to yourselves. Mr. Benton thinks that the hearing in court may take place this afternoon. He has gone down to the bank and he wants you both to come as soon as you have eaten your breakfast."

"I had thought," said Tom, "that I'd better be looking up a situation. There is evidence enough to hold the burglar for the higher court without and I shall not be needed."

"Oh yes, you will be needed," Mrs. Benton said. "Why Tom already seems like a brother to me. I couldn't get along without him now and don't you feel that way, too, Maude?"

"That young lady, who had said little thus far, blushed and replied: 'I would not put it quite so strong as that, Charley, but we do want him to stay if he likes us well enough to do so. He will be a help to us in our music and a such a companion for you, Charley.'

"That's the stuff, good sis. I've lived more in the last twelve hours than in half as many years."

"Well, well, Charley, that's going some," exclaimed Tom, "since you must have slept six hours of that time, at least. I'm afraid I won't stay as well as your acquaintance as I seem to have been by every one of the family."

Look at Miss Benton—since I came among you? It is one of the pleasantest episodes of my life. If it is my good fortune to make my future home in Alderburg,

Tom Gets a Situation

Tom and Charley were warmly greeted by the ladies when they made their appearance in the dining room for breakfast. Mrs. Benton put her arms around them saying: "I am proud of both of you. I was anxious last night lest you should get injured by those terrible men, but you have come out of it unharmed and with great credit to yourselves. Mr. Benton thinks that the hearing in court may take place this afternoon. He has gone down to the bank and he wants you both to come there as soon as you have eaten your breakfast."

"I had thought," said Tom, "that I'd better be looking up a situation. There is evidence enough to hold the burglar for the higher court without me and I shall not be needed."

"Oh, yes, you will be, Jarvis says. We need the matter over this morning before he went away. He thinks there is a situation for you here, and we are not ready for you to leave us, just yet, are we, children?"

You bet we are not mother," exclaimed Charley. "Why Tom already seems like a brother to me. I couldn't get along without him now and don't you feel that way, too, Maude?"

That young lady, who had said little else for a while, replied: "I would not feel it quite so strong as that, Charley, but I do want him to stay if he likes us well enough to do so. He will be a help to us in our music and a great compensation for your Charley."

"That's the stuff, good sis. I've lived in the last twelve hours that for me is many years."

Well, Charley, that's going to be a long time, since you must have slept six hours of that time, at least. I don't want to wear as well on your acquaintance as I seem to have secured in, and it would really hurt me to measure, to fall in your good graces. But I do like you all—glancing shyly at Maude—very, very much. And who has been treated better than I have been by every one of the family?"—another shy glance at Miss Benton—"since I came along?"

"It is one of the pleasantest aspects of my life. If it is my good fortune to make my future home in Alldersburg, you Miss Benton, must call me Tom. It makes me feel old to be mistaken."

"Then you must call me Maude and Miss Benton me so much."

Well, I suppose it will come natural enough by and by to do so, but somehow I don't feel that familiar just yet, with a high bred and charming lady—garden me for saying it."

nish what I require by filing with surties a certificate of good moral character and competency to fill the position."

"Never mind my boy, I'll look after that bond matter. I have been decided that tomorrow afternoon at one o'clock the tramps will have their hearing before Justice Jones Randolph in the town hall. We shall be required, with Charley as witnesses. I told them that we would be on hand without being summoned. You will be the principal witness for the prosecution, but I suppose you do not know much about proceedings in court."

"But I do, Mr. Benton. I've often witnessed such trials before Justice Albert Adams at Lakeport and I understand how they are conducted. My father thinks I was cut out for a lawyer, but I didn't like certain features of the practice such as I saw used by Joe Peters, the village lawyer there, who is a shyster and unscrupulous. That was the cause of the disagreement between us. When father was a candidate the last time for the legislature, Peters ran against him and was badly beaten. He never could get elected to any office of importance, where he is known."

"Our attorney here is a good man and is well grounded in the basic principles of the laws," said Benton. "His name is Mr. Cyrus Whiting. He will conduct our side of this case. Some of the seal having element here, who oppose every thing some of us are interested in, have secured Joram Pincheon of Jonesboro, a town about ten miles south of here, to defend the criminals. He has a great reputation for grilling witnesses on their cross examination. But let us go down to the express office and see how affairs are there."

They found that the express matter to go out on the forenoon train had been attended to, but with packages to be delivered in the village, and Miss Harris are almost distracted at the situation, and her father's sickness. She told Mr. Benton that he was worse when she left the house and she felt that she ought to be at home. At this time Bert Clark drove up to the door for more packages.

mother? And what do you say, Maude? You can stop this foolishness, if you ask him to stay."

"Oh, Charley, I couldn't do that. It wouldn't be the proper thing. Don't you see that?" answered his sister.

"Of course, Charley, Maude can't do that, but I'll be greatly disappointed to have him go away to board—he is such a smart, nice boy, and for your sake, Charley, especially, I had hoped he would stay with us. It seemed so good to see you two together. Mrs. Benton, that I allow him to pay any board. It's best, however, to let the young man have his own way. He won't forsake us. He likes us all too well for that. To be very grateful to me for obtaining the situation he has, and will be governed by my wishes and advice."

"Well, Jarvis," said his wife, "I had hoped to have him in the family, and shall not be readily reconciled to have him make his home elsewhere."

"Our attorney here is a good man and is well grounded in the basic principles of the laws," said Benton. "His name is Mr. Cyrus Whiting. He will conduct our side of this case. ## SUMMER

Bartlett Have New Cars—Letter from Old Friends—Friendly Comments on Recent Article.

The new cook and boarding house keepers at the mill are Mr. and Mrs. Averill from Andover. Their twelve year old son is with them. They drive a modern Chevrolet sedan.

One night, recently, there was a Dodge coupe drove into town from New Hampshire and at seven o'clock the next morning, Lionel Bartlett became the owner of same. Lionel says there is an airplane motor in it.

The writer regrets to learn that the situation at the old Oxford mill in Rumford, where he was so comfortably sheltered for nearly fourteen years, does not look so rosy as in former years, and it is said that its management are laying off help by the hundred. The reason is said to be the installing of more modern machinery. Dropping help to a large extent from the Oxford not only means hard times for the help, but to Rumford and surrounding towns as well, for at all mills in the country operating to any great extent the old Oxford was right there with nothing less than five days per week and two thousand employees got their checks. Never to skip a week.

P. V. Redding was at Rumford, recently, on his summer visit to cater to the public with all kinds of produce fresh from the country. Perce brought back a load of palatable cakes including ice cream and cake, groceries and so on, that brought his large Reo speed wagon nearly to the skies. He said business is always bound to pick up around the Fourth. He also engaged several bushels of green peas from Emerson Bartlett, to carry upon his next trip to Rumford, which was Thursday of last week on account of the Fourth coming on Friday.

Jerry Bartlett traded his Ford coupe, on his summer visit to cater to the public with all kinds of produce fresh from the country. Perce brought back a load of palatable cakes including ice cream and cake, groceries and so on, that brought his large Reo speed wagon nearly to the skies. He said business is always bound to pick up around the Fourth. He also engaged several bushels of green peas from Emerson Bartlett, to carry upon his next trip to Rumford, which was Thursday of last week on account of the Fourth coming on Friday.

Just a few days back the writer received a very friendly letter from an old friend, it was Varney Smith, one of the old Dixfield spool mill pioneers who came from Seaboard. Varney saw the corn stone laid for the old mill, and he also played a prominent part in setting up all the machinery and worked there for a great many years. Varney, in this letter mentioned many items of memory around the good old town of Dixfield and the mill. And he also said that out of the forty-three that used to work in the mill, forty of them have passed on. Mr. Smith thanked the writer many times for him to read his article which he sent to the Norway Advertiser, "Dixfield Forty Years Ago".

Just as the writer was typing the last line of the above sentence, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Park drove in, and before he could reach the car the Judge had started conversation and he recollects thought he was going to give him ninety days. But soon after shaking hands with two of Oxford County's most popular people, Albert changed the subject to the writer's old Dixfield Forty Years Ago, and both told him in a friendly way that seldom, if ever, they read in a newspaper any thing that so deeply interested them as did that article. They both read it over and over. Mr. Park brought up several items mentioned in it, the old horsemen in their high wheeled sulkeys, Uncle Tyler Elder, the winter speakeasy, the old schoolhouse, where the writer attended school under the management of both Mr. and Mrs. Park. Also the poker joint and so on. Both of them told him they look ahead for his writing in the Advertiser and read every word with great pleasure. Comments from people of such high standing in life, really encourage such young fellows as the writer to such an extent that he cannot fully express himself.

Jerry Bartlett took his mother and sisters, Grace and Gertrude, to the lake, Sunday afternoon, June 29, in his new car.

LOVELL

Archie Lambert

Our townspeople were much shocked and grieved by the instant death of Archie Lambert in an automobile accident on Sunday afternoon, June 29.

Archie came to our town five years ago, with his brother, Arthur, who works for the Diamond Match people around their summer place. Archie was a fine musician, good to work and always ready to lend a helping hand to any who needed his aid. For some time he made his home at Herbert Taylor's, but since Mrs. Taylor's death he has lived by himself near his brother's. For the past nine months he has made his home at Elmer Andrews' and worked a part of the time for Mr. Andrews and partly around the portable mill operating for Andrews & Andrews.

He leaves to mourn their loss an aged father and mother, several brothers, sisters, nephews and nieces, as well as innumerable friends who grieve for the untimely end of one so young, he was just 26 years and 3 months old, when the end came.

Handles Easier—Does Better Work

John Deere High-Lift Mower (Equipped with Tongue Truck)

If you want to do a better job of mowing this year and for many years to come, go into your fields with a John Deere High-Lift Mower equipped with the quick-turn tongue truck.

The quick-turn tongue truck saves the horses and results in better work. The flexibly-mounted axle permits truck wheels to hold to the ground. There is no neck weight on the horses, and whipping of pole is eliminated. The truck always keeps the front end of mower frame at the correct height.

The improved lift on the John Deere is surprisingly easy to operate. By only slight pressure on the foot-lift you raise the bar high enough to pass over ordinary obstructions and when you put the hand-lift into use, the bar is easily raised to extreme height—the inner shoe is raised high enough to pass over any obstruction that can be cleared by the doubletrees and the knife continues to operate in this position.

Other advantages include balanced drive gears, which reduce wear and insure smooth running; special location of bevel pinion, which prevents end thrust; and 21-point clutch, which insures instant starting. All adjustments are made with ordinary tools.

We'll be glad to show you this improved mower.

SOUTH WATERFORD

Many Summer Guests in Town—Chimney Fire at York Farm.

Mrs. Chas. Rich and two boys and a girl, who are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hamlin, arrived in town Tuesday.

They are located in the lower rent at Lena York's for the summer. This is the third summer the Rich family have been here.

Miss Rose Starett of New York City is spending the summer with Miss Atherton at the Atherton Cottage.

Miss Atherton is slowly gaining, was able to spend one day the past week with her sister, Mrs. Jennie Plummer.

Mrs. Percy Everett, (nee Dorothy Decker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oso Decker) of Norway had an operation for appendicitis at the Central Maine General Hospital in Lewiston this past week.

Mrs. Decker has been in the hospital several times and Mrs. W. E. Abbott was there on the Fourth. Mrs. Everett is getting along fine.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hamlin, of Springfield, Mass., and their granddaughter, Dorothy Mills, of Hartford, Conn., were callers at Mrs. A. A. Monroe's.

The Smiths have rented the Charles bungalow in Harrison for the summer. Mr. Smith has been ill for several months and is in Maine for his health.

Mrs. Smith is Mrs. Monroe's sister.

Mrs. Myrtle Kneeland Phillips, her daughter, Theresa and son, James, two young friends and the granddaughters, Mrs. John Phillips of Watford and Mrs. John Phillips of Watford, arrived at the Kneeland house on Monday for the summer.

Miss Phillips has just completed her second year in Emerson College of Theology in Boston, Mass.

Phillips, the older son, spent the Fourth of July holidays with his family here. He is working for the Palmetto Soap Co. during the summer.

Henry Merrill of Bethel is working on the farm here. He boards with his father, Mr. Merrill, going to his work.

Mr. and Mrs. John Craig and son, Vernon of Farmington, with his aunt, Mrs. Oso Merrill, a real family party, enjoyed a picnic on Nutmeg Brook on the Fourth.

Week end guests of Mrs. Martha P. Perry were Edger Sargent and his mother, Mrs. Sargent, with Miss Fannie Lyman of Watford, Mass., a niece of Mrs. Perry, who spent the week.

The various camps in our vicinity have opened for the season in this past week.

Miss Dorothy Holden and Mrs. Ben Collins were in Lewiston on Wednesday.

Louise Stone of Watford drove the car for them.

Clinton Goodwin has gone to Harrison to work for the summer. His aunt, Helen Stevens, is in Harrison, as cook during the summer months.

The strawberry crop in this section was nearly a failure. The drought early in the season must have been the cause.

"Camp Wigwag" had a fine display of fireworks on the Fourth of July. They could be seen some distance.

Waterford Creamery is very busy these days, pasteurizing milk for the camps.

On the night before the Fourth there was a bad chimney fire at the York Farm. Early in the evening it caught from the fire in the fireplace. At that time it was thought to be a chimney fire.

Three they were awakened by smoke. Mr. Rogers found flames pouring from the chimney. He and Charlie Crow kept the roof wet so no damage was done.

It was rather quiet here during the Fourth. Many attended the celebrations at Lynceville, Bridgton and Norway.

Mrs. Nello Frost, who has been visiting here, is somewhat improved.

Story of the Silver Ball by One Who Played Short Stop for Every Game

Silas H. Burnham, Lincoln, Nebraska

The following story is written by the only surviving member, S. H. Burnham, Chairman of the First Trust Company of Lincoln, Nebraska, note.

The history of the Old Penneesseewassee Baseball Club of Norway, Maine, has been written several times, but always with errors, more or less, which have not been corrected. Mr. Burnham, who is the only member living at the present time and who played short stop in every game of the Penneesseewassee ever played.

Baseball enthusiasm was just getting started in Maine in 1867, sixty-three years ago. The ball game previous to that was "four old cat" played with a different ball from the hard baseball. When the latter was made his base or "goal" ("goal") as it was called in those days, in order to get him out, he had to be "banged" out when he ran for the next "goal".

There was great fun in playing round ball or "four old cat". We used to make our own ball with rubber inside, wound with yarn and covered with leather. But in 1867 baseball took the place of the old game and there was much excitement in the town through New England. In 1867 a baseball association was organized in Maine with all the large cities and villages becoming members, and to start it off a tournament was held in Portland, that being the largest city in the state.

Ten or twelve clubs in the association participated in the tournament, which lasted six days. There were two clubs in Portland, one called the Buns and the other the Athletics; one in Lewiston and one in Bowdoin College, one in Bangor, and the others in the next largest cities or villages.

At the end of the tournament it was found that the Buns of Portland had won and were awarded the silver ball, which was the trophy played for, and was of solid silver, costing about $100. Under the rules the winning team of the tournament was obliged to play any challenging team one more game during the season, but only one, and the defeated team could not play again until the next season unless the winning team was defeated, in which event every team had the right to challenge and the holders must play them within two weeks or surrender the silver ball.

The Buns were successful in defeating all who dared to challenge during that season after the tournament had closed and held the ball throughout the season. They had it on exhibition in the principal show windows in Portland throughout the winter, where it attracted much attention.

On the opening of the following season, May 1, 1868, the Buns still continued to defeat any who dared to tackle them. Under the rules the team challenged could count them off two weeks and they always took advantage of that rule.

In 1867 when the association was formed and the tournament held, the Penneesseewassee took no part, not even joining the organization.

The Penneesseewassee were a club away up in Oxford County in a village of two thousand, in Norway, Maine, and took the name of Penneesseewassee from a beautiful lake at the head of the village, seven miles long and one and a half miles wide, and while they had played at the county fairs and with the different schools in the surrounding villages, they had not joined the organization. A very remarkable thing about them was that the first nine were from the village, and the rest were from the surrounding villages, and of course they could not be expected to compete with the large city teams. They had no club house, but used to meet up over Euse Hawkins' cobble shop on the third floor, rented by Clara Smith and Jimmie Danforth and called Cobble's Hall. However, the following year, 1868, they joined the association and made up their minds to go after that silver ball. They figured they could get the last game of the season.

The Buns were going strong and were likely to defeat any remaining team that was entitled to a game, in which event they would be obliged to accept a challenge from the Penneesseewassee sent in just two weeks before the season closed. On the other hand, if by chance they were defeated and the silver ball changed hands, it would subject the holding club to a challenge from every club in the association.

The season was drawing to a close, there would be only two more games. Bowdoin College challenged and by putting them off two weeks, there were only two weeks left, or a chance for one more game, so that in event the Buns won they would be obliged to accept our challenge, and in case the Buns lost, every club could challenge for the last game. On the other hand, if by chance they were defeated and the silver ball changed hands, it would subject the holding club to a challenge from every club in the association.

day by train, stopping over night at Minot to visit an old sweetheart. Silas Burnham, our farmer short-stop, and Gene Fuller, our farmer pitcher, left Friday morning by the Portland and Bangor train, and the silver ball was left in the hands of the two-wheeled chaise, which Silas had borrowed from Isaac Denison, the leading merchant in Norway. Cyrus Tucker and Clarence Smith, both village boys, left and center fielders, left by Tucker's one-horse-and-buggy outfit.

These four with noon-day lunches and for baiting the horses, started about sunrise on Friday on the forty mile trip to Bowdoin, stopping about half way for their lunch and to feed the horses, during which time we fedled and caught flies, reaching Brunswick at about five o'clock in the afternoon, where we found the other members, who had drifted in by various ways and means; Ike Morrell, our farmer first baseman, Marton Bartlett (village boy), our second baseman, Jimmie Danforth (village boy), third baseman, and Clint Young, our farmer right fielder.

When the latter party went out to the grounds for the practice. The whole college turned out to watch and size the boys up.

Summer Burnham took his old forty-two inch oak bat and told the pitcher to shoot. Naturally they gave him a good ball and he caught it just right and when it finally landed it was outside the field, beyond the main traveled road and across two fences, in a garden in a cabbage patch, where we were told no one had knocked a ball that far in the memory of the earliest settlers. He hit one out nearly as far and made his base the next batter, who did nearly as well.

We stopped right there with the batting and threw around the bases a few times and knocked a few flies which the fielders took in and before we had made any breaks, we quit and retired to our hotel.

It was not very long before a particular friend called and told us that the boys were scared out of their boots. He said, "They are licked before starting."

Well, we spent the night very quietly, going to bed at eight-thirty and in the course the college boys were very hospitable and wanted to give us a banquet, but we farmers were very unsophisticated and thought they might put something over on us.

By noon on Saturday special trains arrived from Portland, Lewiston, Bangor and other points, so when one o'clock came there was the biggest crowd we farmers have ever seen.

The umpire flipped a nickel and we had to go to bat. We made a couple of runs and they did the same. In the second inning we scored two, but in our third we did not make a run and when they came to bat the first man up went to first base, the second man made a hit and carried the first run to second base. The third man up made a hit and the bases were full and nobody out. It didn't look very good just then, but an unusual thing happened right there.

Knocked a fly down near the pitcher's box and the second baseman, who was young, went for it. The fly came back between the second and third bases. The bases being full and they not thinking the fly could be reached, all started. The short stop, who was young, made a hit and the bases were full and nobody out. It didn't look very good just then, but an unusual thing happened right there.

The next game two weeks later was with the Athletics of Portland, one of the best teams in the association. They came from Portland in a special train with a big brass band and an immense crowd. As soon as they reached the grounds one of their enthusiasts holding his arm high with a roll of bills, cried out, "Any part of a hundred dollars that the Athletics ever have the silver ball!" That was something unheard of with the Penneesseewassee.

It is doubtful if the whole team could have realized it was the silver ball, the result that there was a death-like silence for a few minutes till finally Sam Briggs, a very large man, weighing a little over 300 pounds, who kept a New England butcher shop and who was sitting in his one-horse buggy, called out, "Send that feller over here. Young man, I'll take $50 of that," and in two minutes more it was all gone and the city smartly retired amidst cheers and groans.

Well, at the end of that game the score was Penneesseewassee 28, Athletics 13, and they returned to their special train and the game was called off over the fence as they passed the cemetery. Well, that put a stop to further challenges for some time till we heard that the Buns of Portland, the club that won the ball at the tournament and defeated and held it against all comers through the season before, were going to challenge us to see that the game would be played in July, right in the midst of haying.

Now you may think that that wasn't so very bad, but the fact is that five of our best players were farmers and it would not be possible for us to get off for practice during haying time.

You might say, "But surely your folks would not keep you in the field during these times, but not so with the old New England farmers of that day. Haying in Maine was the most important thing in farming and while we might get off at four o'clock on Saturdays, that would be all we could expect."

When we discovered their trick to challenge us in haying time with this new combination, we went to the Ursula Majors and the Ulysians, two old professional players we sawed through after we had played for the fun of it on Saturdays with a banquet at night with plenty of the good old-fashioned "oh be joyful", and told them the situation, and they agreed to second base. The third man up made a hit and the bases were full and nobody out. It didn't look very good just then, but an unusual thing happened right there.

Knocked a fly down near the pitcher's box and the second baseman, who was young, went for it. The fly came back between the second and third bases. The bases being full and they not thinking the fly could be reached, all started. The short stop, who was young, made a hit and the bases were full and nobody out. It didn't look very good just then, but an unusual thing happened right there.

NORTH WATERFORD

Mrs. Hutchinson Dead—Circle Program—Guests at Brandon's—Improvements at Five Kezars.

Supper guests, recently, of Mr. and Mrs. Will Ray were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Rice and Donald Rice, and Mr. and Mrs. Weston Woodbury of Bangor, N. Y. Mrs. Best, State Nurse, is also stopping there for a week.

Mrs. Lucy Hutchinson's death, Friday night, after an illness of about an hour, was a great shock to her many friends as she had seemed as well as usual and took a walk with her little granddaughter that day. She lived in the family with her only daughter, Mrs. Willis McKee. Her other daughter, Mrs. Harry Brown, died several years ago. Funeral held at the home, Monday at 2 p. m., Rev. W. I. Ball officiated.

She left one brother, John Carter, and three grandchildren, Winfield and Lawrence Brown and Ava McKee, besides other distant relatives and a host of friends to mourn her death. The profession of flowers spoke of her high esteem. Burial was in Woodlawn cemetery beside her husband, who passed away several years ago.

The council meeting was held at Albany, Thursday of last week. Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hersey took Miss E. B. Hamlin, Marilla Marston and Annie Hazelton to the city for a short stay. Josephine Sanderson is working at Bethel a few days.

Rev. and Mrs. Bull are visited by a party of guests from Keegan, N. H. Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Hazelton, Marilla Marston, Maude Allen and M. J. Cunningham took a trip to Chatham, N. H., Saturday, and had a picnic lunch by the sea shore.

Three was a large attendance at the Circle, Tuesday night, entertained by Annie Hazelton, Leola Elliott and Edith Littlefield. A good program as follows was given:

Singing, "The Morning Callers," Annie Hazelton, Josephine Sanderson, Leola Elliott, Edith Littlefield, Marilla Marston, Maude Allen and M. J. Cunningham. Vocal Solo, "The Silent Land," Rev. W. I. Ball. Reading, "The Silent Land," Rev. W. I. Ball. Remarks, "The Silent Land," Rev
